City Council Spent Much Time Discussing It.

ROBERTSON'S RESOLUTION

A WILDOAT SCHEME.

Buckle Believes That There Has Been Almost Criminal Carelessness On the Part of the Officials Who Have Charge of the Supply and Distribution-Rival Committees.

Besides numerous other important matters considered, the city council last evening reviewed the water problem in all its dips, spurs and angles, conditions, possibilities and whatnot. Councilman Robertson, as usual, was instigator of the discussions. Whether bent on making mischief or actuated by a sincere desire to have setuated by a sincere desire to have some measures of relief for the suffering people adopted on wise and consistent lines, his reports served at least to arouse a sentiment favorable to prompt and intelligent action in the premises, if not to stir up the apecial committee appointed a month ago to devise ways and means for getting more water.

IMMEDIATE AND FUTURE RELIEF.

Attention was drawn to the water question by the following resolution from Councilman Robertson:

That the city engineer be directed to make the necessary surveys and measurements for reporting as soon as possible on the following matters:

1. The necessary changes to be made in the present pipe distribution system and the estimated cost of correcting the defective and unsatisfactory conditions in the system of water distribution.

. By what means an additional sup ply of water sufficient for present needs can be procured next season at a lim-ited cost. The most desirable method of obtaining an increased supply of water for future needs of the city, and an estimate of the cost thereof. WIDE-RANGE DISCUSSION.

Fernstrom opened the bail by char-acterizing the purport of the resolution a wildcat scheme, and besides, in his opinion, there was no necessity of rush ing matters.

Buckle told of the inconvenience and Buckle told of the inconvenience and suffering borne by the inhabitants in the eastern part of the city for the last three months because of the scarcity of water. He expressed the belief that there had been carelessness, almost criminal, on the part of the officials whose duty pertained to the water supply and distribution, in permitting such conditions as complained of by everybody to exist. He had promised his constituents there would be relief, but he had been compelled to relief, but he had been compelled to break faith with them, through no fault of his. He opposed the motion to refer the resolution to the special com-mittee, because he had no faith in the militee, because he had no faith in the committee's good intentions.

Chairman Howe of the special committee expressed regret at Buckle's predicament before his constituents. He added that no relief could be expected this year, but there may be something good accomplished for the future. He had used his best efforts to get his committee together and it had qualified to ascertain it any of the several proposed plans were feasible. It will be next year, and probably later, he contended, before a supply from new sources can be brought to the city, but sources already owned by the municipality can be developed and protected. Before surveys are made it will be impossible to know from where or how more new water is to be che

MORE WATER TALK. Buckle again arraigned the special committee for its dilatory tactics and Howe again defended the committee against the charge that it had been in-different to its duties. Fernstrom wanted to blame the farmers who use Parley's water by theft and otherwise for the famine in the

Robertson also took a hand in the censure and visited a few compliments upon City Attorney Hall for not reporting a bill for an ordinance, as directed a month ago, to devolve the duty of protecting the city's water rights on a special commissioner. Then Robert-son spoke of the waste of water in the city cemetery and gave Wallace a thrust by saying while the streets were insufferably dusty Wallace's buscult factory alley could be sprinkled by the city's carts. Robertson asked "why is this so?" But the councilman from the

Robertson asked Barnes if he knew whether the diverters and farmers were entitled to any of the water from the city's sources of supply and the latter replied: "No; nor the amount of their respective rights cannot be determined without a measurement after rights are adjudicated."

The resolution was then put to a vote and lost by a vote of 7 to 7. The vote was: Ayes—Allen, Buckle, Callister, Diehl, Fernstrom, Siddoway and Robertson: noes—Howe, Margetts, Morris, Patrick, Weiler, Wallace and Barnes. FARMERS HAVE WATER ON THE BRAIN.

E. B. Wicks Joseph Lippman, Charles Longson and Henry H. Harries, stock-holders in the Pleasant View Irrigation company, represented that the abandonment of the Parley's canal by the city last month left the company's ditch in a vastly different condition than what was required by the terms of the contract between the city and the irrigation company in October, 1588. The communication informed the council that the city would be held responsible for delay or failure to put the ditch in as good and service-able condition on sit was ten years ago. Attention was also called to the unsafe condition of six road bridges, and the fact that the city would be expected to at least agree with the company to keep 2.71 feet of flume in repair, because when the contract was made allowing the city to run Parley's water through the company's ditch only 40 feet of flume was required. For all these and the alleged loss of water the company's representatives demand satisfaction. The matter was referred to the Irrigation committee.

MEASURING WEIRS NEEDED.

MEASURING WEIRS NEEDED. MEASURING WEIRS NEEDED.

State Engineer Gemmeil called attention to the sixte hw requiring the taking of measurements of all streams and the filing of records of such water measurements with the state engineer not later than Dec. I, and annually thereafter. It was represented that the measurements should be made over weirs to obtain an accurate record of flow at varying periods. The matter was referred to the committees on irrigation and waterworks, with the city engineer associated. THE MAYOR'S WATER WARNING.

A resolution recommended by the committee on waterworks was adopted. It directs the mayor to issue a proclamation, in acordance with the provisions of municipal law, limiting the use of water for sprinkling lawns, gardens and yards to the morning boars for the upper district and to the evening in the lower listrict.
